Dear Brian,

Thank you for the information regarding Conestoga College's Business Administration - Supply Chain and Operations Management (SCOM) program.

The business course requirement of the CCLP® designation is intended to ensure that certified designation holders have well-rounded business competencies to complement their supply chain logistics expertise. In addition to our core supply chain courses, we offer a number of business courses, ranging from: The Foundations of Risk Management, Business Strategy, Business Law, Financial Management, Business Writing, Accounting: The Fundamentals, Business Management, Introductory Economics, Marketing: An Introduction, and Organizational Behaviour. While the students are free to take as many of these courses as they like, only five are required for the business competency part of the CCLP designation. In addition, students are required to take five of our six logistics courses.

Currently, the business courses CITT offers are through the University of Toronto's continuing studies department.

However, we are pleased to acknowledge prior learning of students at other academic institutions and have implemented an exemption policy. This policy allows CCLP candidates exceptions from some of our academic requirements based on their previous education. Please note, graduates also need at least 5 years of work experience in the industry to earn the CCLP designation. Those who do not have that experience yet can apply to become articling participants (official CCLP candidates) and will have access to the majority of member benefits while they gain the work experience requirement.

In reviewing the materials you have provided, the following is a summary of our understanding and the program offered that would align with the pursuit of the CCLP designation:

Students graduating from Business Administration – Supply Chain and Operations Management (SCOM)

We have assessed all the courses offered under the SCOM program, and found that the program satisfy the five business course components we require towards the CCLP designation. Therefore, students graduating from "Business Administration – Supply Chain and Operations Management (SCOM)" will meet the academic requirements to earn the CCLP designation upon successful completion of the following courses:

Five required courses offered by CITT:

- Transportation Systems
- Logistics Processes
- Integrated Logistics

And choose two from the following electives:

- Transportation Law
- Economic Influences on Logistics
- Logistics Decision Modelling

We look forward for all your graduates to continue with the remaining logistics courses towards obtaining the CCLP designation soon. Your graduates can reach out to Maria Murjani at (416) 363-5696 ext. 24 for any assistance or further questions about this advanced standing agreement.

Let me know if you have any questions or clarification. I look forward to your reply.

Thank you and kind regards,
